Version & License 2.9.9.0 42712 2.9.6.1 43 Homepage: Page Source: A: The ESET log shows that the index is bad. You will want to delete the index from ESET and then rebuild it with a clean index. You can access the ESET control panel by using the same software that you used to download the ESET Smart Security 42712 32 A 64bit MiNODLogin 3961 43 (for me it was ESETNOD) and go to Maintenance -> Indexes to rebuild the index. Q: How to read properties of.txt files with JavaScript? I'm trying to use JavaScript to read a.txt file, then store the information in a form. The problem is the code below returns me an empty response. Can someone explain me why? var xhr = new XMLHttpRequest(); xhr.open('GET', 'file.txt', false); xhr.send(null); var info = xhr.responseText; alert(info); A: You should do: var xhr = new XMLHttpRequest(); xhr.open('GET', 'file.txt', true); xhr.onreadystatechange = function () { if (xhr.readyState == 4) { var info = xhr.responseText; alert(info); } }; xhr.send(null); As @Arup Kapadia mentioned, getElementsByTagName may not be a good idea, as the list of tags is not static, and it's better to use a regex. var xhr = new XMLHttpRequest(); xhr.open('GET', 'file.txt', true); xhr.onreadystatechange = function () { if (xhr.readyState == 4) { var matches = xhr.responseText.match(/^([:])([:])([:]*);
